I am Sanjoy Kumar Das from Bangladesh. I want to share one of my real-life experiences that was a big challenge for me to overcome. In 2015, I was the final year of the undergraduate program, and it was the most important year in my whole life. I had faced a lot of new problem ones after another. An unexpected situation has happened so that the family faced a financial crisis for a long duration. The only earner of the family became sick. It was my last 2nd last semester and I have been worried about my study, living. So I had suffered mental, physical difficulties along with financial problems. I have managed tuition for living and managed the semester fees with the help of my friends. Due to the family problem, the relationships with parents became harsher, and facing mental stress. Final year research also ongoing at that moment, the overall situation was very worst and I failed a course, it's happened first time in my whole life. One of the thesis members did the worst blaming to me, want to separate from the group. Actually, that guys utilized my good time. When he fulfills his wishes and overcomes his difficulties, he breaks the group and friendship for individual career growth. However few people make friendships for their own benefit but for everyone not like that. Other guys support me and continue the thesis. I have finished the undergraduate course and thesis with 2 international conference publications. After 6 months my family overcomes the crises and everything became normal again. During this period to improve mental and physical health, I deeply engaged with meditation, yoga, fasting, and religious ritual. It helps makes me a strong believer in the almighty. Finally, the obstacles help me explore a plethora of things, like the impact of a good friend in life and honesty. In every situation of life, good humans always try to help us financially, mentally overcome the problem. It's a good realization that a problem came in life to make us stronger, and we have the capability to manage it before death.
