2. The lessons we take from obstacles we encounter can be fundamental to later success. Recount a time when you faced a challenge, setback, or failure. How did it affect you, and what did you learn from the experience? I obtained bachelor degree in civil engineering-General Department- from Al-Baath University - Homs - Syria at rate 79.93% (the top students) and I got the Al Basel award which is awarded to the top three students (2016). When the devastation began in my country and I saw the war-torn neighborhoods and cities I realized that I must be in the future in a place that allows me to reform around me and to work effectively, and develop the society. Inspired by the painful scenes I decided to study civil engineering. I came to this stage after my determination to face the challenges and difficulties which imposed by the war on my country which we had to move from our city to another . In most time I could not travel from city to another because of fighting , some times there is no electricity ,no internet , so this devastation in my country made me like civil engineering and willing to get high marks in university and achieve my goal to get excellence in most of courses. I think we have to be able to face difficulties and strive towards goals.
